NAVAL POLICY IS ATTACKED

Sir Wilfrid Criticizes Government For Abandoning Their Platform

OPPOSITION LEADER IN FINE FORM

He Rouses His Followers to Highest Points of Enthusiasm

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne which was commenced in the House of Commons yesterday was marked by much discussion and debate of a similar nature in recent years.

Interest was lent to the occasion by the moving of a formal amendment by Sir Wilfrid Laurier which practically accepted the government's proposal to declare itself in regard to its naval policy and criticizes its Government's conduct of naval affairs.

The debate, which was opened in the House of Commons yesterday, was marked by much discussion and debate of a similar nature in recent years.

After the introduction of a few bills, including A. E. Lancaster's bill to amend the naval service act, the debate was at the temere decree, the address in reply to the speech from the throne was introduced by Sir Wilfrid of Calgary, in a speech marked by a good many eloquent passages.

After the debate had closed the address in French, spoke for a few moments only. Referring to general terms of the speech, he said that the people of the Dominion should have one flag, one hope and one language, and that the speech was greeted with general applause.

Then came the opposition leader, the Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who closed largely with reciprocity, he continued to insist that the government had not done all that could be done for Canada and that serious results would follow in rejection. Sir Wilfrid closed his speech with the greatest height of enthusiasm when dealing with the naval question. He said that the world's opinion and views of those who occupied the places in cabinet should not be put to the test, and that the party that had been, one party had given way to the other.

Mr. Borden, who got a warm reception when he rose to speak said that the Canadian people would not receive the speech with enthusiasm, and that the American would think all the more of them for their indifference. He said that the speech was still adhered to the view expressed in his manifesto on the navy. The program of the government was well received and this would give no opportunity for reconsideration of the whole question.

The debate was continued by Hugh Guthrie for the opposition, and H. G. G. Ross for the government. P. B. Carvel moving the adjournment.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—With the House not in session, the Liberal members dined three of their bills, one to amend the marriage act, one to amend the Dominion election act, and a third to amend the railway act.

The first bill, Mr. Lancaster introduced was intended to provide that every voter in the Dominion who is not officiated at by any clergyman or others authorized by the Canadian law to officiate in any church, may not be declared illegal by any association, church or tribunal. A certain legal decision had been made.

Mr. Borden, who seemed to have rendered this matter, which seemed to have been in any doubt, doubtless in the best possible light, in view of Canada's attitude in the matter should be defined to the world.

The election bill, which was to amend the election act, no voter can vote in other except his home constituency, and no voter can have but one vote. The third bill, which had been introduced one regarding the division of payment for railway earnings which the Senate had rejected.

R. B. Bennett, of Calgary, then rose to move the reply to the speech from the throne. In an effort to make an effective speech, the entire House listened with great attention. He began by saying that the most important duty which he was now fulfilling was a recognition of the fact that his constituency was the third largest city of Canada, situated on the lakes. He also recited the fact that this parliament was the first parliament of the Dominion which had been opened by a Governor General who was a member of the royal family. The Duke of Connaught was not only because he was of blood royal, but also because of his fine record amidst the nobility of the British Empire. The Duke of Connaught, in England and wherever else he had labored for the Empire, the speaker also referred to the fact that an additional welcome would come to the Duke from the fact that he is the last living son of Queen Victoria. It was also mentioned that he should or should come when a new Canadian Government had entered office.

The speaker then made it clear that they would never do anything to do with anything that would cost the risk of changing our constitutional position.

The speaker then said that he hoped that the world would never be compelled to do anything that would mean the risk of changing our constitutional position.

The speaker then said that he hoped that he would be longer to stand in the opposition (laughing).

Mr. Bennett congratulated Sir Wilfrid on the fact of reaching his 80th birthday, and said that he hoped that he would be longer to stand in the opposition (laughing).

Mr. Bennett then said that from a personal point of view he was extremely gratified.

The speaker then said that the meeting put into which all nations were pouring, and thousands of settlers had come from the United States, was the result of the opening of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

One of the most sensational and surprising sales of this year is about to be consummated in the City of Edmonton. We have found it absolutely necessary—in order to do justice to our other two departments—to clear out every piece of our Dry Goods Department at prices, not only as low as any other store has offered to you in days gone by, but infinitely lower. In some cases well below the cost of the manufacturer.

This step was decided upon by the firm after very careful consideration and much thought and the only result is that we have strict instructions to effect an entire clean up within a short time in order to allow the other departments of our business to make their necessary arrangements.

So the opportunity is yours, one of a lifetime, one that cannot be repeated in Edmonton for many years to come, if ever, and last, but not least, one that offers you seasonable goods of superior quality at such low prices that the very mention of a price would almost lead you to believe that the quality of the garments was not what we claim it to be.

Therefore, ladies, do not hesitate a moment, because we firmly believe and anticipate an extraordinary rush upon our resources in the morning. Numerous people have already been in to see the class of goods we are selling out and have been astonished, and judging by their remarks we naturally presume they will be on hand at an early hour. WILL YOU?

We only ask you to remember that the sale opens at 8:30 o'clock to-morrow, when every bit of our Dry Goods department will be on sale and open for your selection. There are some dandy buys, everything is in excellent order and every purchase will be a bargain.

DISCHARGED LIBERIAN

The man that a Quaker row on Kintzington avenue last evening ended without fatality was no fault of John Jankowski, who was taken into custody. He had in his possession an automatic revolver of the latest make, which he had been using for the purpose of making progress of a fight which took place in front of the Savoy Hotel. Fortunately, the shots went wide, and the magistrate was not injured.

It is understood that a murder case might have resulted.

When arrested, Jankowski was drunk, which was the cause of his loss of the cause of the fight.

The discharge of the firearm caused immense excitement in Kintzington avenue.

The dangerous weapon was taken from the prisoner, who spent the night in the cells on Rice street, night ago?

NOT REVENUE EXPECTED

The result of the recent tax billings on water main has not altogether justified the expectation of the council that the amount paid would meet the deficit in the waterworks department. While it was hoped that the amount paid for the water would reach a grand total of approximately $25,000 the actual receipts to date for this year amount to $15,000.

The amount of the tax was five cents per linear foot charged on all property, including water mains.

Estimating the revenue to be derived from this tax, however, no account was taken of the fact that the billings were therefore not as large as expected.

The charter gives the council power to impose a tax up to $100,000.

It is considered likely that the amount will be increased next year to meet the deficit.

Previous to 1908 this frontage tax was levied each year, but that time the department showed a small annual surplus. Supposing that the department was then established on a sound basis, it was removed, and the following year, each succeeding year has shown a deficit.

One of the arguments in this instance is that a contribution towards property which is benefited by the extension of this utility but who do not apply for connections and who do not pay for the extension, the cost of the extension. It is therefore, in accordance with the system of taxation, that the holders of unmapped property are compelled to contribute to the cost of administration.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT
J. Kydd, of Jasper's garage, 100th street, was badly shaken as a result of an automobile accident which he was witness to Saturday night. The accident occurred about eight miles northeast of the city on the Fort trail about 7 p.m. Saturday evening. Mr. Kydd was returning from Athabasca Landing, and the front seat with him was Mrs. Haight, a sister of R. H. Ford, of Edmonton. In the back seat was a man, unoccupied, and a store keeper. About nine miles from the city the car met a team and was struck by the horses.

According to the story given the Bulletin by Mr. Kydd, his car was driving along the trail when he saw the team approaching. He pulled his car as far to the right of the trail as possible, to give the team room to pass. On the other side of the road, the men kept right in the middle of the ditch. It was unavoidable, as he kept his course, the chauffeur swerved his car sharply to the left, and crashed into the horses.

At the same instant the driver of the team pulled his horses to the same side, and crashed directly into the side of Mr. Kydd's car. The horses were also struck on the head by the hoof of one of the horses, rendering him unconscious for a moment.

Mr. Haight and Mr. Campbell were both badly shaken up but neither suffered any serious injury.

Mr. Kydd, who was driving, was the first to get out to see what the horses had entangled in the wire fence and were badly mangled.

The horses had come into the trail from the west yesterday and demanded damages for the injuries they had suffered.

Mr. Kydd made a deliberate attempt to kill them and placed a blanket over them to cover the horses.

Needless to say there was no coin of the realm forthcoming, as the horses were dead.

The most plausible explanation would seem to be that the team driver, seeing the automobile approaching, was so intent in his excitement failed to give the portion of the road which the car had taken.

It is the opinion of the police.

REDUCTION IN PRICE OF CEMENT

In November, 1916, it was announced that the price of Cement had been reduced. That announcement was followed by many as conservative as the opinion that the Canadian Interests in cement had proved a good thing for the public.

The theory of consolidation such as that of the Canadian Cement Company, that the consolidated interests are to a position to effect economy in production.

That the Canada Cement Company are working upon the idea of increasing the production of cement rather than curtailing production and obtaining higher prices, is clearly shown by the statement of the shareholders at the last Annual Meeting, when he stated: "It is considered that the demand and increased output will result in further savings in the cost of cement." It is the opinion of the public that the policy of your Directors is to give your customers the benefit of these savings.

This is further evidenced by the announcement, which was made in November, 1917, that there would be a further reduction in the price of cement.

The reduction in some districts is 10 per cent, and in others 15 per cent.

At the meeting of shareholders at the whole it will probably average 10 per cent.

This reduction—with the exception of the price of cement.

It is the opinion of the public that the policy of your Directors is to give your customers the benefit of these savings.
